THE GLENN HODDLE COLUMN: The Spurs midfielder tells the REAL story behind his decision to quit England... EXCLUSIVE!

MY mind is made up. I'm leaving England to play abroad. But I'll be back... and hopefully wearing the famous white shirt of Tottenham once again.

Spurs will always be the number one club for me. I would never play for anyone else in this country.

And I would like it written in my new contract — wherever it may be I finish up — that Spurs will have the first option of buying me when I return to England.

Naturally it was a very difficult decision to leave after so many fabulous years at White Hart Lane, but there comes a time in everyone's life when you need a change and a new challenge.

Above: The goal that won Tottenham the FA Cup for the second year running. Glenn wheels away after scoring from the spot against Q.P.R.

White Hart Lane goes mad as Glenn gives that famous Hoddle salute after scoring one of his Spurs specials. Now his talents will be on show to the Continental fans.

GOODBYE

IT'S ITALY FOR ME — BUT MY

I have considered playing on the Continent twice in the past — two and four years ago — but I was never 100 per cent certain that the time was right.

Now I feel I am more mature and better equipped to handle such a move and fulfil an ambition I've had for a number of years.

At the time of writing I don't know who I will be playing for next season. I'm considering all offers that come along.

Preferably I would like to play in Italy, but I've got an open mind and haven't ruled out the possibility of a move to Spain or Germany.

‘I will never forget how the crowd chanted my name and asked me not to leave.’

The only certain thing is that I won't be signing for another English club.

That's an indication of how much I love Spurs and the supporters who have been marvellous to me ever since I played my first game eight years ago.

My first full game was against Stoke and ironically it was against the Potteries side that I played my last.

It was the final match of last season at White Hart Lane and although I had not publicly revealed my intention, I knew deep down inside that it would be my last game in a Spurs shirt... for a few years at least.

It was a very emotional

Flashback to July 1981 and Glenn signs on for Spurs for another two years, watched by manager Keith Burkinshaw. This time the club couldn't persuade him to stay...

GLENN

HEART BELONGS TO SPURS

afternoon and I will never forget how the crowd chanted my name and asked me not to leave.

After the final whistle all the players began to exchange shirts but there was no way I was going to give mine away.

In the dressing room all the lads were in jubilant mood because we had just qualified for Europe, but I sat alone in a corner and shed a few tears.

It was difficult to believe that I would be leaving the club after so long. I have been associated with Spurs since I was 11 years old and supported them as a kid before that.

But when I signed a two-year contract at the end of the 1980/81 season, I said then I would be leaving when it expired.

Spurs offered me a fabulous one-year contract to stay at White Hart Lane, but my mind was made up.

I have thought long and hard about the decision and both I, and my wife Anne, believe it's the right one.

It will be a great challenge. Not only will I have to learn to play in a new arena, but I will have to learn a new language and adapt to a different life style.

I have spoken on several occasions to Trevor Francis and Liam Brady, who are both playing in Italy, and they believe the Italian style of play will suit me down to the ground.

I won't know until I try it but Trevor and Liam seem to have gained from their experience and I think playing on the continent, where the pace is slower, will improve my game.

Some people seem to think that playing abroad could hamper my international career. But I disagree... it certainly hasn't done Trevor Francis any harm.

And in the past Kevin Keegan and Tony Woodcock played in Germany, but were still picked to play for England, so why should I be any different.

There is no way I will sign for a foreign club, which would not be prepared to release me for internationals. I will want something written in my contract.

On the England front, I was delighted to be recalled by Bobby Robson for the British Championship and to be picked for the game against Northern Ireland and then the 'big one' against Scotland at Wembley.

'I sat alone in a corner and shed a few tears.'

It was great to be involved with the national squad again after a season when I had been plagued by injury.

I missed more games last season than ever before during my career and it was very disappointing and frustrating sitting on the sidelines.

But in my last year at the club it was nice to get back in action towards the end of the campaign and give the fans a glimpse of the real Glenn Hoddle.

When I came back from injury before, I was never really 100 per cent fit and didn't do myself justice in the few games I played.

But manager Keith Burkinshaw and his assistant Peter Shreeves made sure I was fully recovered before returning to the side following my ankle injury and it showed in my performances.

I felt I was getting back to something like my best and was delighted to be able to help Spurs clinch a place in Europe next season.

The biggest disappointment last season, other than my injuries, was being knocked out of the FA Cup by Everton, when we were bidding to win the trophy for the third successive year.

It would have been a marvellous way to end my spell with Spurs, by playing in another Wembley final.

But I will be taking many good memories with me when I go abroad and in particular the two FA Cup triumphs, which must rate as the highlights of my career so far.

I will never forget my days at Spurs, and who knows, after two, or three years abroad I may again be playing for the best club in Britain.

Glenn Hoddle

● Glenn Hoddle was talking to Dave Smith.

Penny for your thoughts! Glenn stands on the terraces of White Hart Lane where he once stood as a young fan.

LIVERPOOL FOOTBALL CLUB has produced some of the greatest teams soccer has ever known and now 'Match' gives you the chance to re-live some of their incredible title-winning seasons — in pictures and through the eyes of some of the greatest players ever to grace Anfield.

This week reporter Dave Smith looks back on season 1972-73... and talks to former Anfield favourite Tommy Smith.

The Anfield

Action from the 1971 FA Cup Final as Arsenal goalkeeper Bob Wilson and defender Frank McLintock combine to thwart Liverpool's John Toshack. The 'Reds' lost 2-1 but it was to prove a blessing in disguise.

THIS was the year that set Liverpool back on the glory trail.

After six lean years the Anfield boardroom was once again gleaming with silverware.

Under the guidance of Bill Shankly, Liverpool became the first English team to win the League Championship and a European trophy in the same season.

It heralded the start of a new chapter in the Anfield success story and began the avalanche of titles which were to come the way of the Merseyside giants.

The captain of that history making side was Tommy Smith, who believes the turning point came at the end of the 1970/71 season.

Says the one-time Liverpool 'iron man': "We had gone a long time without winning anything, but when we reached the Final of the FA Cup in 1971 — only to lose to Arsenal — everyone felt we were on the way back.

"A lot of changes were being made at the club. Great names of the past, such as Roger Hunt, and Geoff Strong and Ron Yeats, were on their way out and a host of younger players were brought in to replace them.

"Bill Shankly had kept faith with the same players for a number of years, but at the end of the 1971/72 season he realised changes had to be made and that's exactly what he did.

"Young lads, who had been waiting in the wings, suddenly emerged and the team seemed to knit together immediately as though nothing had happened.

● Liverpool's score first in each case.

avalanche begins!

"People like Peter Cormack, Larry Lloyd and Phil Thompson burst on the scene and with Kevin Keegan and Steve Heighway coming into their own there was a strong feeling success was just around the corner.

"We went on to win the Championship and the UEFA Cup in the same season and from then on, things just got better and better."

Tommy, who was a member of the Championship winning squad of 1965/66, believes the FA Cup Final defeat at the hands of Arsenal was a blessing in disguise.

"We had all experienced the feeling of failure and it made us more determined to succeed in future," he says.

"After such a defeat it's so easy for teams to slide downhill, but we reacted the opposite way and from then on everything started to happen and trophies came our way.

"It was marvellous for me to captain what was a comparatively young side and to lead them to a UEFA Cup triumph is something I will always remember."

Liverpool couldn't have had a more testing start to the League campaign. They entertained the two Manchester clubs in the opening games and, in front of crowds of around 55,000 on each occasion, succeeded in collecting the maximum four points.

Those victories instilled great confidence in the side, which went from strength to strength.

Says Tommy: "We were top of the table for the majority of the season and at no time looked in any real danger.

"The only threat came from Arsenal who had completed the League and Cup double the previous year, and they were the only team to beat us at Anfield.

"I joined Liverpool in 1960 just after he took over as manager and all the time he was at the club, there was always an air of expectancy.

"He was a great manager and his record over the years spoke for itself."

Liverpool clinched their eighth League Championship with a 2-0 home win against Leeds and then turned their attentions to the UEFA Cup Final, against the crack German side Borussia Moenchengladbach.

"It was a great occasion for everyone connected with the club, but once the celebrations were over our only interest was the game against Borussia," recalls Tommy.

"The first leg at Anfield had to be cancelled because the pitch was waterlogged following a torrential downpour.

"We played the game the following night when it was still pretty sloppy under foot. But we adapted to the conditions well and were worthy 3-0 winners.

"Even though we were 3-0 up

Tommy Smith — "We had gone a long time without winning anything but everyone felt we were on the way back."

after the first leg we never considered we had done enough. We knew their potential at home and they hit back with two early goals in the second leg.

"After that we took control and could have gone on to win comfortably. In the end we were happy to hang on, to win the trophy for the first time.

"Winning the UEFA Cup gave me particular pleasure and it was a relief to know that after six years of wandering down a dark corridor there was light at the end of the tunnel."

On the Wright track

WORLD Cup skipper Mick Mills wasn't a bit surprised at the inclusion of his young Southampton team-mate, Mark Wright, in the latest England squads.

Says Mick: "Last season Mark matured into a central defender as good as any I've played with."

"Kevin Beattie was probably a little stronger, but I consider Mark every bit as good as Terry Butcher and Russell Osman were at the same stage in their careers."

Farewell Ricky

IT SEEMS that Europe has seen the last of Tottenham's Argentinian midfield star Ricky Villa.

The bearded player, best remembered for his brilliant winning goal in Tottenham's 1981 FA Cup replay triumph over Manchester City, is planning to spend the next couple of years in America with Fort Lauderdale.

Although it was rumoured that he might end up in Spain, Ricky says he will eventually return to his ranch in Argentina.

Meanwhile Ricky's colleague, Osvaldo Ardiles, made it clear before he left for a summer break in Buenos Aires that he will be playing with Tottenham next season.

Welcome-back Trevor

ENGLAND's Trevor Brooking will be playing with West Ham for at least another season.

The elegant midfield player, who played only one First Division game last season because of injury, has signed a one-year contract.

"I'm delighted it has worked out this way," says Trevor, whose only appearance was in the 3-1 defeat by Arsenal last month.

"There were offers, but West Ham has been my only club and I'm more than happy to stay."

Trevor is to prepare for next season by spending six weeks in Hong Kong playing with Bobby Moore's Eastern team.

BRENTFORD duo Paul Walker and Gary Johnson have joined South African club P.G. Rangers who are based in Johannesburg.

BURY, who narrowly missed out on promotion to the Third Division, have been forced to withdraw their reserve side from the Central League and unload 13 players in order to reduce costs.

Wales bank on England

MIKE England's contract as Wales manager has been renewed for another three years which will take him up to the next World Cup Finals. Wales, who narrowly missed out on last year's World Cup Finals, are currently in a good position to reach next year's European Championship Finals in France.

"I feel honoured that I've been asked to stay on", says the former Tottenham defender.

MILK CUP MONEY-GO-ROUND

NEXT year's Milk Cup winners will pick up a cheque for £64,000 as well as the coveted trophy at Wembley.

In a new share-out scheme for the competition, the runners-up will collect £48,000, the Semi-Finalists £16,000, down to £1,000 for the First Round losers.

● SECOND Division champions Queen's Park Rangers opened up their New Zealand tour with odd goal wins over Canterbury and Wellington. Clive Allen scored the only goal in Canterbury, while Simon Stainrod and Terry Fenwick, with a penalty, netted in the 2-1 win over Auckland.

● ENGLAND's Luther Blissett scored a second half equaliser for Watford in their exhibition match against the newly-formed Team America in Kingston, Jamaica.

● NORWICH have nipped into Merseyside to sign Everton youth player Mark Farrington. The 17-year-old scored four goals against Norwich's youth team in the recent FA Youth Cup Final which the young 'Canaries' won after a replay.

FAIR DINKUM!

BARHAM OVERJOYED BY AUSSIE TOUR PLACE

NORWICH winger Mark Barham was literally dreaming when told of his selection for England's three-match tour to Australia.

And he was still in a dream world when he jetted across to the other side of the globe as the real surprise packet in Bobby Robson's new-look squad.

He was asleep in Norwich's Norwegian tour hotel when manager Ken Brown telephoned him with the shock news of his selection.

"As the words came out I shook a little," says 20-year-old Mark, who had been completely overlooked by the England Under-21 selectors.

"It came right out of the blue and made me feel ten feet tall." And that's quite something for the little winger who stands barely 5ft 7ins!

He celebrated that evening by creating two goals in the Canaries' 5-2 friendly win over Norwegian First Division club Molde, then decided to quit the club's holiday trip to Ibiza to prepare properly for his trip of a lifetime.

"It has always been my ambition to play for England, but to be fair I didn't expect international recognition so soon, especially as I haven't played at Under-21 level."

says Mark, who made a second half appearance as substitute for England youths against Denmark three years ago.

But Mark, who admits that he didn't have the best of seasons, has no fears about stepping up into the international arena: "I am normally a very confident person, and there can be no greater boost than pulling on an England shirt," he says.

Mark's career started in the Southern League with Folkestone at the age of 15 and it was their manager, former Gillingham star Brian Yeo, who recommended him to Norwich coach Mel Machin.

After two trial games he found himself whisked away with the youth team to an international tournament in Holland: "I only played once during the whole tour and felt I was just there to make up the numbers," he recalls.

"But when we got back, Norwich offered me a two-year apprenticeship.

"The first few months were hard and I seemed to be drifting nowhere and then John Benson, now manager of Manchester City, and Mel Machin got to work on me.

"They devoted hours of coaching time to me and virtually taught me how to play."

Mark Barham — shock call-up made him feel ten feet tall.

'CITY MUST TAKE THE BLAME'

WHILE Arsenal's Graham Rix mourns the relegation of Manchester City he claims: "They only have themselves to blame.

"I was disappointed to see them go down, because it's always a pleasure to go to Maine Road. They have top class facilities and a large following.

"But questions must be asked about a situation where a team can collapse like a pack of playing cards, after being second in the table just before Christmas.

"Only time will tell whether relegation will enable them to return to the First Division much stronger — rather like Manchester United and Tottenham — but I think at this stage City would rather swap places with a team in the top flight."

SIX OF THE BEST

SIX stadiums will be used to stage the European Championship Finals in France next summer.

The Finals kick off on June 12 at the Parc des Princes in Paris where the Final will be held 15 days later on June 27.

The other stadiums being used are Lens, Strasbourg, St Etienne, Nantes, Lyon and Marseilles.

The eight Finalists will be split into two groups with the top two in each going through to the Semi-Finals being held at Marseilles on June 23 and at Lyon the following day.

ORIENT UPSET

ORIENT, who just escaped relegation to the Fourth Division, will have a new manager in charge next season.

They have parted company with Ken Knighton who was halfway through his four-year contract.

"I'm bitterly disappointed. I knew it would take four years to sort out what was wrong," says the former Sunderland boss.

"It has taken me two years to get the club run properly. I felt we had turned the corner."

"If there's one thing I can't stand it's bad losers!"

JOIN THE JUNIOR SPURS

TOTTENHAM are forming a 'Junior Spurs' Club next season with special offers to the members.

Membership will be open to boys and girls under 16 and will include reduced admission to First Division matches at White Hart Lane, free entry to reserve games, organised tours of the ground and souvenir items.

More details will be announced later in the summer, but membership forms can be obtained now from Peter Day, c/o Junior Spurs, Tottenham FC, 748 High Road, Tottenham N17 0AP. A stamped addressed envelope must be enclosed.

6 TEAM talks with my lot are impossible... they usually ended up as joke telling sessions. I gave up giving them after the game against Hereford in February. I just couldn't get through to the players because they were laughing so much. It all started as I was going through the Hereford team and came across a player called John Crabbe. I just happened to mention that he ran funnily... then came the cracks. One player asked me if he went sideways while another reckoned he had a special 'claws' in his contract. The jokes just went on and on...

INTERVIEW:
Anthony Hawkswell.

But don't get the idea that the lads don't take football seriously, because they do. I believe that if they are relaxed and happy they will do their job better.

There's one time of the day I really love at Vale and that's having a cup of tea with the players in the dressing room after training. I try my hardest not to miss that.

I love sitting around with them and getting involved in the friendly banter.

I'm a great believer in playing attractive football and I've got players here who are very skilful. Four of my lads — Phil Sproson, Russell Bromage, Geoff Hunter and Steve Fox — were included in the PFA's Fourth Division team.

We went up to the Third Division in style and I'm proud of that. We didn't have to kick ourselves up and I believe other teams respected us for that. They knew they had a chance — if they were better they'd beat us.

I've also got a lot of inventive players here. I remember one occasion when we spent about an hour practising free-kicks and corners. The following day they scored with a set piece I'd never even seen.

I'm not going to make predictions about how well we'll do in the Third next season, but Chesterfield manager Frank Barlow told me the other day that barring Portsmouth we were the best team his side played last season. That's got to give us some confidence!

I'd like you to meet the players...

BARRY SIDDALL: Signed on a free from Sunderland, he proved our number one defender last season. A goalkeeper of stature, he inspires confidence in his back four and is one of the biggest influences at the club.

Barry is a real character and one of the chief mickey takers. He's always ready with a wisecrack and full of fun.

COLIN TARTT: He's the unpredictable one in the back four. He does a lot of crazy things and yet he seems to get away with them. A real favourite with the fans.

I signed Colin on a free from Chesterfield and the 31-year-old contributed a lot last season. He's a natural ball player.

RUSSELL BROMAGE: I'm resigned to losing him because he has turned down a new contract. He is ambitious for First Division football and I'm more confident about him making the grade than I was about Mark Chamberlain.

He must be among the six best defenders in the country — a great supplier of the ball and a tremendous athlete. He loves to go forward so much that I've seen opposing wingers waiting for him to go on a run. My captain, he's only 22 and yet has played more than 200 games.

PHIL SPROSON: When I took over he was a bit of a 'Mummy's

'MY TEAM' is a great new series where winning managers talk frankly about their teams with fascinating and often amusing player-by-player profiles.

It's a series you won't want to miss so place a regular order for 'Match' with your newsagent by filling in the special order form on Page 5 of this week's issue.

This week the 'My Team' spotlight falls on Port Vale — promoted from the Fourth Division last season — and John McGrath, the manager that took them up.

boy'. He was allergic to pain — the sort who'd limp when he had a headache. Now he is the opposite — Phil plays like a trojan!

A lot of First Division clubs, including Forest and Stoke have been after him, but I've managed to persuade him to sign a new contract. Deep down I think he wants to beat his uncle Roy's record of League appearances for Vale. A magnificent header of the ball.

WAYNE CEGIELSKI: The biggest problem I've had with him is spelling his name. Wayne is one of the best professionals I've ever worked with. He's a manager's dream.

He's the quiet assassin — he just gets on with his job in the centre of defence alongside Phil Sproson.

Above: Russell Bromage: "I'm resigned to losing him."

Left: "Barry Siddall: "Our number one defender last season."

VALIANTS!

Phil attacks the ball whereas Wayne does the tidying up. They were the best central defenders in the Fourth Division last season.

TERRY ARMSTRONG: The battler in midfield — our unsung hero. He is the sort of person who would deserve a VC and yet never get one. He had a super season and his work gave the other lads confidence to go forward.

Terry is a born moaner. If he found a £1 note he'd complain it wasn't a fiver. The players take the mickey out of him something rotten . . . and he usually falls for it. He's been caught so often that if he was a salmon he'd be in a tin by now!

GEOFF HUNTER: The joker in the Port Vale pack, he is the sort of player who does the unexpected. A creative midfielder who wouldn't be out of his depth in the top flight.

Geoff is a great man to have on your side. He's a winner and hates being beaten.

JOHN RIDLEY: I call him 'Pollyfilla' because he can fill so many gaps in the side. A very versatile player, John is normally a midfielder but he was superb in the back four towards the end of the season.

John only trains part-time because he is a schoolteacher. At the moment he works in Chesterfield, but he's looking for a job in the Stoke area.

STEVE FOX: A true winger like Mark Chamberlain. He's not the sort of player you can coach. His skill is instinctive. I got him on a free from Wrexham because they couldn't afford his wages.

When he first arrived he was a bit quiet, and the others used to pull his leg. Now he gives as good as he gets and has become a master of the wisecrack. He comes out with some beauties.

JIM STEEL: A £5,000 buy from Oldham in March. He had a bad spell here for a while but I'm confident he can do well at Vale. He scored three vital goals — including two in our last game of the season against Stockport.

He is a good footballer and holds the ball well. Jim pulls defenders wide and creates plenty of openings for goalscorer Bob Newton.

BOB NEWTON: He'd walk over crocodiles to score. If he'd been credited with every goal he claimed he would have had 50 last season. We played Everton in a friendly and they gave us a goal start . . . Bob claimed it!

Bob is a super fellow, but he's not the sort of person I'd like to play against. He is a great influence in the dressing room.

JIMMY GREENHOFF: The former Man. Utd and Leeds star went to Rochdale as manager just before the end of the season, but he contributed so much to the club that he can't be left out.

Although his legs were going, he brought quality to the side and a lot of his influence has rubbed off on the others.

● NEXT WEEK — Graham Hawkins talks about the Wolves of Molineux.

Right: "Jimmy Greenhoff — contributed so much before leaving the club."

HAT-TRICK HEROES!

Spotlight on last season's hat-trick heroes in the League... who got them, who against and when, Exclusive.

LIVERPOOL'S Ian Rush and Luton's Paul Walsh, two of the most exciting young strikers in the First Division, led a hat-trick riot in the Football League last season.

Liverpool's Ian Rush — joint top hat-trick scorer

Rush and Walsh each scored three trebles and a staggering total of 83 were scored in all four divisions last season.

The divisional breakdown: Division One, 20; Division Two, 24; Division Three, 24; Division Four, 25.

Reading's Kerry Dixon, who pounced on a 7-0 defeat at Doncaster, had the dubious distinction of being the only hat-trick scorer in the Football League last season.

Hamilton, who scored successive Saturdays in November, was one of three players to grab four goals in Division action, the others being Watford's Keith Blissett and the rubbing of Sunderland and Ipswich's John Wark.

England striker Luther Harrison, who has two hat-tricks in his career, was a top flight footballer while Manchester City and Norwich found themselves on the receiving end of three hat-tricks apiece. It was a remarkable feat for young Paul Walsh to achieve a hat-trick of hat-tricks, considering he finished the season with 13 league goals.

Although Birmingham were relegated in the last match of the season, Steve Taylor and Billy Hamilton shared top honours in the Second Division hat-tricks, while Leicester's Gary Lineker also collected a brace in his last game.

The Football League's hat-tricks in the 70s were a crashing success. Carlisle were on the wrong end of the first three hat-tricks scored in the Second Division last season.

The Third Division honour was shared by Lincoln's David Bonner, Kerry Dixon and Exeter's Steve Neville with two apiece.

Huddersfield players Mark Hammett and Brian Stanton both enjoyed four-goal shows, along with Dixon while Exeter and Fourth Division Rochdale made words record in the League.

Aldershot's Dave Banton, the only player to score five goals in one match last season, scored hat-tricks in successive Saturdays, a feat he shared with Stockport's Mike Quinn. Banton was one tour-goal blitz from Northampton's Dave Syrett, who opened the Fourth Division's scoring in September.

Dundee United winger Eamonn Bannon:
"Charlie possesses a very rare gift."

DUNDEE United's Eamonn Bannon is convinced that Charlie Nicholas will be a success in the English First Division. He says: "Charlie has the same instinctive skills as Kenny Dalglish."

"It would be unfair to compare him with the Liverpool striker, but they both possess a very rare gift. You can sense that they will do something special when they arrive in the box."

"The duo also score spectacular goals and have the ability to make them look simple. Newcastle's Kevin Keegan can do the same."

"Charlie is a real pleaser. He used to have the Celtic crowd in raptures every week and I see no reason why he won't do the same with his new club."

Eamonn is better qualified than most to talk about the pressures and problems faced by a player who moves South. He experienced the pain of failure and returned home to Scotland after eight miserable months at Chelsea.

"The big difference between Charlie and me is that I joined a club which was struggling at the foot of the First Division. There's no way he'll do that. Charlie will sign for a successful team that has a chance of winning something."

"The pressure on him is the fact that he's got to justify his big transfer fee and prove himself to the club and the fans."

"But he's not short of confidence and that will help when he moves to a strange club and meets new players. He will go out of his way to make friends."

Eamonn believes that Charlie could find it easier in English football. He explains: "He'll have more time on the ball because the tackle from behind is outlawed down there."

"He will be up against a better standard of defenders. In Scotland you play against top class players once every three weeks, but in England you are up against established names every game. Even so, he has proved that he can score goals at any level."

"I can understand his reasons for leaving Celtic. The First Division gets the most publicity in Europe and he will be under the spotlight."

"There is a lot of money to be made. I don't think Scottish clubs can compete with their English counterparts financially."

"I'm sorry to see him leave but in this game you've got to make a living while your are still young."

NICHOLAS — THE NEW DALGLISH?

CRAIG
PATERSON
(RANGERS)

ENGLISH defenders are no better than those up here, so I see no reason why Charlie can't continue his goalscoring exploits.

The only difference he'll find is that he's up against established names every week whereas in Scotland that wasn't always the case.

But he has proved himself against the likes of European Cup Winners' Cup holders Aberdeen and Premier Division Champions Dundee United.

Charlie would cause problems anywhere. He's so unpredictable. He's always liked to turn on something special and there aren't many players around who can do that.

He's at his most dangerous when he goes deep to collect the ball and then comes running at you. That's why Frank McGarvey was such a perfect foil for him. He used to drag defenders out of position and give Charlie the chance to attack people.

FRANK
McGARVEY
(CELTIC)

THE pressure will be on Charlie to produce the goods when he plays for his new club, but that's just the way he likes it.

The young striker loves the limelight and he's so much sharper when he's under pressure. That's why he'll do well in the English First Division.

The lad has so much talent and skill that he can play anywhere in the world and score goals. He's got everything going for him.

I'm disappointed he's gone from Celtic's point of view, because we've got a very good side at Parkhead. But it's the right move for him. He's got to think of himself and financial security.

No team can afford to lose a player of his skills, but the last time Celtic won the Premier Division title we were without him because he had a broken leg. We can do it again!

● Spurs and Aston Villa had still to announce their 'Player of the Year' awards at our time of going to Press.

GARY Stevens, the people's choice as the FA Cup Final's outstanding player, completed the 'Mable' by receiving the 'Player of the Year' award from the Brighton fans.

Little was known about the qualities of the young defender before the Wembley battles with Manchester United, but obviously the Brighton supporters had already appreciated his contribution to the club's battle.

But while Gary battled in unfamiliar glory, Liverpool's Kenny Dalglish accepted yet another award as if it was all in a day's work.

The 'Footballer of the Year' has picked up so many awards in recent weeks that his sideboard is in danger of collapsing, but getting the vote of the Liverpool fans in another Championship season must have given him great satisfaction.

At Watford, unsung hero Wilf Rostron, took the honour.

Although players like Luton's Blissett and John Barnes continuously hit the headlines last season, as Watford blazed a glory trail on their First Division debut, it was the former Arsenal player who was the fans' choice at Vicarage Road.

Evergreen John Hollins said goodbye to the Arsenal fans by collecting the trophy at Highbury (see story Page 22), while across London, England centre-half Alvin Martin was taking the award back home with him, after winning it the second successive year.

Not surprisingly Bob Latchford, who kept a continuous stream of goals going despite Swansea's problems, picked up the trophy at the Vetch Field, and another seasoned campaigner, 'Match Weekly' columnist Paul Mariner, celebrated his first season as Ipswich captain by winning the award for the first time.

Mark Wright, Southampton's new England recruit, underlined his potential by topping the charts at the Dell, and Ian Atkins obviously had an outstanding first season with Sunderland by taking their award.

Peter Hucker leaving the field in triumph after Q.P.R. had held Tottenham to a draw in the 1982 FA Cup Final — now the young 'keeper has landed Match Weekly's 'Top Stopper' award.

Hucker's revenge is sweet

QUEEN'S Park Rangers goalkeeper Peter Hucker has gained full revenge from his former Loftus Road rival John Burridge, by claiming the Match Weekly accolade of 'Top Stopper' in the Second Division.

The young custodian, understudy to John at Loftus Road until last year, finished below his predecessor in the 1981-82 'Top Stoppers' table.

But last season Peter was out in front on his own, conceding just 36 goals in 42 games as Rangers swept to the Division Two title in convincing style.

That gave him an average of 105 minutes between each goal, leaving John, the charismatic backbone behind the great Wolves revival, in runner's-up spot for the second successive season.

However, this time, evergreen John had company on the 86-minute mark in the shape of Leicester's Mark Wallington.

So it meant that the first three places in the table were filled by the goalkeepers who'll be pitting their skills in the First Division next season.

Then came Sheffield Wednesday's Bob Bolder who jumped eight places from the previous season even though he conceded only four fewer goals in another ever-present campaign.

The biggest drop was suffered by the previous season's title winner Terry Gennoe.

This time the Blackburn 'keeper found himself in 14th place, some forty minutes down on his winning mark of 105 last year.

Peter takes title in style

John Burridge — runner-up to the man he kept on the sidelines at Loftus Road.

Right: Sheffield Wednesday's Bob Bolder — jumped eight places from last season.

THE first column after the player's name shows the number of League appearances last season, the second column shows the number of goals conceded and the third column shows the average number of minutes play between each goal.

For instance, Barnsley's Bobby Horn, on average, conceded one goal every 78 minutes last season.

Only League games were used in the compilation of this table and only those goalkeepers who made at least 20 appearances qualified for inclusion.

CUT OUT AND KEEP

PAUL Rideout is looking to England striker Peter Withe guide him to international honours.

Following the success of Villa Park the talented youngster Match Weekly's similar sort of player and he can teach me a lot. The manager, Tony Barton, says I would be working closely with Peter in training and that's one of the things which influenced my decision to sign.

He's a tremendous player, always admired him. I couldn't have a better person to give me advice and guidance. The former Swindon star came the second player to be loaned by Villa from a number of clubs.

Barton signed Steve Nicholson from Everton when the young midfielder looked like he was forays as a winger.

And the captain of the young side was a player who was not a goal scorer. Says Paul: "I was in the display on the Monday and the following day I went to Villa. I didn't take me long to decide which was the right move."

It was a naturally bitter-sweet move for the young striker. "I was a bit sad to leave Villa but I was happy to go to Villa. I was a bit sad to leave Villa but I was happy to go to Villa."

When Barton signed him, Barton said he was a bit sad to leave Villa but I was happy to go to Villa. I was a bit sad to leave Villa but I was happy to go to Villa.

...though Charlie Nicholas as well. Though Bob Paisley told me I couldn't necessarily be playing for the team for 11 months. He said if I proved myself good enough I would get a chance. I didn't take my chance very highly and I turned them down. It was a difficult decision to make but I don't think it was right to go there.

I can go to the bottom of the league and establish myself. I've got a lot of experience. I would love to go to Liverpool. I hope they don't do anything against me. Liverpool and Villa were my clubs to show interest in. I was a bit sad to leave Villa but I was happy to go to Villa.

"It's not just a question of shrugging off challenges to win the ball and lay it off. There are many other things to think about," he says.

"First of all you have good vision and awareness of what's going on around you, knowing where players are and assessing where the ball's going to go.

"And you have to be able to make yourself available at all times in any part of the pitch. It can be very demanding because you need to be constantly on the move, and that means keeping yourself fit.

"Once you have found space and are ready to receive the ball your skill and control is put to the test. Your first touch is crucial. If you don't ASTON Villa's Peter Withe is in the mould of the traditional, English centre-forward...big, strong and a constant menace to any defence.

He's also the perfect target man, always making himself available to receive balls played from the back and then laying them off with clinical precision to create openings for team mates.

It's not a role for the faint hearted. Strength and courage are the main assets of a good front runner like Peter.

He expects to take knocks. Being clattered in the back by an over-eager centre-half is an occupational hazard. But you will never find him shirking a challenge and you can be sure he'll be in the thick of the action for 90 minutes.

It's that sort of aggression and commitment which has made Peter a vital member of Bobby Robson's England squad, but as he explains, there's more to the role of target man than meets the eye.

possession may be lost and many of your team-mates caught out of position.

"A good target man must be able to bring the ball down with any part of his body, because you never know what height or speed it's going to come at you.

"It's a question of controlling the ball as quickly as possible by any means, whether it's your head, chest, thigh or feet.

"I use my chest quite a lot, especially when my supporting team mates are close by and you need to glide the ball gently and accurately into their path.

"Once you have brought the ball under control you have to make a split second decision: Do I hold it? Do I turn? Or do I lay it off straight away?

"At Villa we break out of defence quickly and when I receive the ball I'm normally looking to lay it off to one of the players supporting in midfield, either Dennis Mortimer or Gordon Cowans.

"You need to read the game well and, because you normally have your back to goal, you need other players to tell you what's going on and where they want the ball.

"Having laid the ball off it's a question of making a run into the penalty area to make yourself available a second time, get on the end of crosses and hopefully score a few goals.

"As a target man you are always going to get knocks, but you have got to be prepared to accept that as part of the job. It's a role I've played most of my career and I've enjoyed every minute of it."

Being clattered in the back by an over-eager centre-half is an occupational hazard.

A good target man must be able to bring the ball down with any part of his body, because you never know what height or speed it's going to come at you.

VILLA centre-half Ken McNaught believes Peter Withe is the best target man in the country.

"He's a marvellous player to have in your side and he fits in great with the way we play at Aston Villa," says Ken.

"We often play the long ball out of defence and you know, if you are under pressure, Peter will make himself available.

"He's a very aggressive player, but he's got a lot of skill for a big man...and he scores a few goals. Peter's got just about everything.

"He had a great season at Villa and his partnership up front with Gary Shaw worked well. He's well worth his place in the England side."

PETER WITHE

By Dave Smith

JOHN Hollins surveyed the empty terraces at Stamford Bridge and vowed: "We will fill them again!"

Eight years have passed since John last wore the famous blue of Chelsea. And now, as newly-appointed player-coach, he is hoping to turn back the hands of time and help restore former glories to the once-great club.

"The Bridge looks so barren with just a few thousand spectators dotted around the terraces, but the fans were there once and they will come back again," he declared.

"I remember playing in the European Fairs Cup for Chelsea against AC Milan in 1966 in front of 60,000 fans. The atmosphere was incredible and I want to see that happen again."

"The club has been in the doldrums for a few seasons but there is a strong feeling that this could be the start of a new era."

John returned to the club, where he made over 400 League appearances during a marvellous 12-year spell, at the end of the season when he was given a free transfer by Arsenal.

He says: "I'm very, very excited about going back to the club where I started my career. I couldn't have had a better move."

"It was totally unexpected but, when they approached me and asked if I was interested in going back as a player coach, I took little or no time to decide it was the right move for me."

When 37-year-old John's contract expired at Highbury, he was confronted with a wealth of offers from clubs up and down the country.

"There were a number of 'up in the air' offers, including some from First Division clubs, which was very flattering," says John.

"But I felt that, at this stage of my career, I should look to the future — in coaching or management — rather than possibly play one more season in the top flight."

At one time, it looked as though John was set to take over the manager's job at Fourth Division Colchester. But when that fell through, Chelsea stepped in.

"It's an ideal arrangement for

'WE'LL PACK 'EM IN'

HOLLINS AIMS TO RESTORE CHELSEA'S FORMER GLORIES

me because I am in a position where I can go on playing and, at the same time, pass on the knowledge I have picked up during my career."

"I have played in the First Division for 20 years, but I haven't given it up because I could be back with Chelsea next season... that's our aim now."

After leaving Chelsea in 1975, John had a spell at Queen's Park Rangers before moving on to Arsenal four years ago.

And he describes those years at Highbury as possibly the best of his career. "It was a great experience and I really enjoyed my stay there," he says.

"When I went to Arsenal, it was as a stand-in and I never expected to still be playing first team football after four years."

"It was great to play alongside such great players and work with people like Terry Neill and Don Howe. I owe a lot to them."

"Every Saturday was a special occasion for me — as it was at Chelsea — and every week I got the same tingling feeling as I pulled on the Arsenal shirt and ran out onto the pitch with everyone cheering."

John finished the season at Arsenal as the supporters' 'Player of the Year', a fitting tribute with which to end his association with the club.

He says: "I have always tried to give 100 per cent and it's nice to know that your efforts have not gone unrewarded."

"I feel very proud that my name is now on the board at the club alongside some very big names and no-one can take that away from me."

John came very close to ending his spell at Highbury on an even higher note. Arsenal were only 90 minutes away from an FA Cup Final clash with Brighton but were defeated by eventual winners, Manchester United in the Semi-Final at Villa Park.

Says John, who last played in a Wembley Cup Final for Chelsea against Leeds in 1970: "It was very disappointing because to have gone to Wembley at this late stage of my career would have been marvellous."

Now he has a new challenge facing him — and one he relishes. "I am looking forward to working with manager John Neal and his assistant Ian McNeil, who I have a great deal of respect for," he says.

"There is great potential at Chelsea, as there has always been, and it's a case of developing that and producing a successful side."

"It won't happen overnight but we have to set out with the aim of gaining promotion next season. We have the same chance as Fulham, Newcastle and Sheffield Wednesday."

"The club has a bright future and I hope to play my part. If I enjoy the same amount of success as I have done throughout my career, I will be more than pleased."

Stamford Bridge — scene of some great days in the past... and it will be again if John Hollins has his way.

WINGERS Tony Morley of Aston Villa and John Robertson of Derby come under the 'Star View' microscope this week.

And the verdict comes from Nottingham Forest full-back Kenny Swain who has played both alongside and against our two chosen stars.

Don't miss 'Star View' every week in 'Match' — it's the series that's got everyone talking.

Kenny Swain says

THE styles of John Robertson and Tony Morley could not be more contrasting.

Virtually the only thing they have in common is that they both operate wide on the left.

'Robbo' is a very skilful player and his ball control is excellent. He uses the qualities he has to great effect and you can always sense that something's going to happen when he gets the ball.

He's always looking to get to the by-line where he can cross a ball perfectly with either foot, from any angle.

He gives the impression of being a lazy, lethargic player, but that's not the case. He always makes himself available for a pass and his work rate is better than people give him credit for.

'Robbo' lacks the pace of Tony Morley, who is very quick across the ground.

The Villa winger also packs a powerful shot with either foot and scores a number of spectacular goals.

His only problem is inconsistency. One week he will be brilliant and the next you won't see anything of him.

When I played in Villa's Championship winning side in 1981 I rated Tony as the best wide man in the country.

But over the last couple of seasons, with the side not doing so well, he has struggled to find the form which earned him a place in Ron Greenwood's England squad.

At the moment, I don't think he is international class. I think he needs to find a greater level of consistency if he is to get back in the England reckoning.

His Scottish counterpart, on the other hand, has been a very consistent performer over the years for club and country. That's probably down to experience.

He is a good team man, and I for one was sorry to see him leave the City Ground to join Midlands' rivals Derby.

His experience will benefit the Second Division club and I'm sure he will do a good job for Peter Taylor. Derby certainly have a better chance of winning promotion with him in the side.

He doesn't score many goals but he's always creating them. To be a goal scorer you have to be physically aggressive and John isn't that sort of player.

What he is best at is holding the ball under pressure, beating his man and creating openings with his precision passing.

I think he is still worthy of a place in the Scotland side and if I was in Jock Stein's shoes I would have no hesitation in picking him.

I have played against him several times in the past and he's a very tricky player to mark.

He's probably easier to pick up than Tony because he stays out wide on the left most of the time. The Villa player tends to come inside more and his turn of speed can often catch you unawares.

Tony likes to attack defenders at every opportunity and on his day is a very exciting player to watch.

He works well with Peter Withe and Gary Shaw and gives the side good balance up front. We've not seen the best of him for a while, but I expect to see a different Tony Morley next year.

Overall there's little to choose between the two wingers, but I think 'Robbo's' experience and proven consistency just give him the edge.

It was hats off to Dundee United in Scotland last season.

The team from Tannadice, who for the past two years have carried Britain's flag the furthest in the UEFA Cup, clinched their first-ever Scottish Championship from under the noses of defending champions Celtic.

At one stage it looked as though Celtic were on course for the treble, having already secured the League Cup for the first time since 1975 with a 2-1 defeat of holders Rangers back in November.

But Aberdeen ended their FA Cup hopes in the Semi-Finals, and successive League defeats at the hands of Aberdeen again and Dundee United, left the door wide open for Jim McLean's side to claim the crown on the very last day of the season, ironically, on the ground of their close neighbours Dundee.

Aberdeen went on to retain the FA Cup in a repeat Final with Rangers, to add to their glorious triumph in the European Cup Winners' Cup Final against Real Madrid, teenager Eric Black clinching victory four minutes from the end of extra time.

Rangers had been the last Scottish team to win a European trophy 11 years earlier, but this time they could only mourn two Hampden Park defeats in the same season, the second after appearing in a record eighth successive FA Cup Final.

At the other end of the scale, Kilmarnock find themselves back in the First Division after just one

'GOLDEN' BOY CHARLIE

TOP scorer . . . hat-trick hero . . . penalty king! Scotland wonder boy Charlie Nicholas was the 'goulden' boy last season.

He finished with a staggering 44 League and Cup goals for Celtic — 28 of them scored in the Premier Division, where he finished seven ahead of the second man.

It was the third year on the trot that a Celtic player had topped the Premier Division charts.

The previous year it was George McCluskey with 21 and the year before that, when Charlie was second on 17, Frank McGarvey took the honours with 22.

Following Charlie home this time, was Dundee

Charlie Nicholas — goulden boy.

United's Davie Dodds whose 22 goals led the way to his club's first ever Scottish Championship.

Charlie was also spot on when it came to penalties last season — boosting his personal goal tally with 11 in the Premier Division.

Dundee United's Eamonn Bannon, the previous season's spot kick ace had to be content with third place this time.

When it came to hat-tricks it was Charlie again — topping the Premier charts with two at the expense of Motherwell and St Mirren.

And for good measure he enjoyed a four goal show against Dunfermline in the League Cup.

Two other players also scored four goals in one match — Aberdeen's Gordon Strachan and Rangers' Davie Cooper in League Cup ties against Dundee and Kilmarnock respectively.

Six other players managed a hat-trick apiece in Premier Division action — Eric Black (Aberdeen) v Celtic, Davie Dodds (Dundee United) v Morton, David Holt (Dundee United) v Kilmarnock, Bobby Thomson (Hibernian) v Kilmarnock, Brian McClair (Motherwell) v Rangers and Frank McAvennie (St Mirren) v Motherwell.

season in the top flight, having managed only three wins all season.

Morton join them after five years in the Premier, and, as a result, manager Benny Rooney lost his job.

Hearts are back in the Premier after just two seasons absence, accompanying First Division champions St Johnstone who were last in the big time in 1976.

Down to the Second Division go Dunfermline, for the second time in seven years, and Queen's Park after just two seasons in the First.

Replacing them are Division Two champions Brechin City, who will be playing First Division football for the first time, and Meadowbank, who achieved promotion for the first time since their formation in 1974.

Jim Leighton — safest hands in the Scottish Premier

TOP STOPPERS

ABERDEEN's Jim Leighton underlined his position as Scotland's number one last season by retaining the honour of being the Premier Division's safest goalkeeper for the third successive year.

The new international keeper conceded only 23 goals in 35 League matches even though Aberdeen had to be content with third place behind Dundee United and Celtic.

That represented a remarkable average of 137 minutes between each goal conceded — an improvement of 25 minutes on his winning mark the previous season. Hamish McAlpine, veteran keeper in Dundee United's first-ever Championship success, pushed Celtic's Pat Bonner out of runners-up spot, also conceding less goals than the number of League games played.

Former Scotland international Alan Rough marked his first season with Hibernian by claiming fourth place, an improvement of four places on the previous season when his previous club, Partick, were relegated.

The first column in the table shows the number of games played. The second column shows the number of goals conceded and the third column is the average number of minutes' play between each goal.

For instance, Dundee's Jim Kelly conceded, on average, one goal every 66 minutes in Premier Division games.

Only Premier Division matches have been used in the compilation of this table and only goalkeepers who played at least twenty games qualified for inclusion.

● The figures in brackets refer to last season.

ASK THE EXPERT

LONDON programme collector Stuart Baverst has some Arsenal and Tottenham programmes that could fetch him a nice financial return should he decide to sell.

He asked us to value twenty Tottenham programmes from 1933-34, 22 Tottenham and Arsenal programmes from 1945-48 and 12 Tottenham from 1946-47.

We estimate that the whole batch, if sold individually, would be worth around £343.

The pre-war Tottenham programmes are worth about £9 each, and the others at £5.50 each for those from the war years, and £3.50 for the 1946-47 copies. Other valuations:

■ 1975 Real Madrid v Derby, European Cup (£4) — James Coleman, Hulland Ward, Derby.

■ 1958 Manchester United v Sheffield Wednesday, FA Cup, Fifth Round (First game after Munich disaster) (£17.50) — G. Lane, Redhill, Surrey.

■ 1965 Newcastle v Bolton (30p) — David Chandler, Rowlands Gill, Tyne and Wear.

■ 1976 Liverpool v Southampton, Charity Shield (£4); 1976 FA Cup Final, Southampton v Man. United (£3); 1982 European Cup Final, Aston Villa v Bayern Munich (£1.50); 1977 FA Cup Final, Liverpool v Man. United (£2) — G. Clements, Swindon.

■ 1974/75 Chester v Aston Villa, League Cup Semi-Final, First Leg (£8) — Steven Nicholls, Chester

■ 1963 FA Cup Final, Leicester v Man. United (£3.75); 1974 Liverpool v Red Star, European Cup (£1) — Jonathan Tittensor, Market Drayton.

It was a stupid idea to stage the European Cup Winners' Cup Final in Gothenburg. Only a meagre 17,000 people turned up to watch Aberdeen beat Real Madrid.

Surely it would be a better idea, once the finalists have been decided, to toss a coin so that one of the competing teams can stage the final in their national stadium.

This would guarantee a bigger crowd, a better atmosphere and more revenue.

Andrew Page, Wednesbury, West Midlands.

WELL DONE Luton! The players and management staff should be proud of the way they battled through the last few matches of the season to escape relegation from the First Division.

Manager David Pleat has bought some brilliant players — Paul Walsh, Paul Elliott and Trevor Aylott. And every one of Pleat's men played like heroes at Maine Road in the relegation decider against Manchester City.

I feel sorry for City — who have to play Second Division football next season — but I'm sure they will bounce straight back up into the top flight.

● I DON'T share your confidence. Next season's Second Division looks like being ultra-competitive.

NIGEL Spink, Aston Villa's superb young goalkeeper, deserves congratulations for winning a place in England's squad to tour Australia.

He has done particularly well this season since taking over from Jimmy Rimmer and put up a wonderful display of goalkeeping at Liverpool, saving Phil Neal's twice-taken penalty.

Nigel, stand-in hero for Aston Villa in the 1982 European Cup Final, has developed into one of the best young 'keepers in the country.

TERRACE TALK

Fulham blew their chance

FULHAM have only themselves to blame for not winning a place in the First Division.

With ten matches to go in the Second Division, third-placed Fulham had a lead of seven points with a game in hand over Leicester City.

Fulham boss Malcolm Macdonald should be kicking himself for allowing his team to squander an advantage like that.

Of course it is desperately unlucky for Fulham that their last game of the season was shortened because of the Derby fans' invasion, but this controversial incident only hides the fact that Fulham threw away a place in the top flight.

Full marks to Leicester for battling on in what looked like a hopeless cause, to snatch promotion at the death.

Paul Petry (14), Carlisle, Cumbria.

great character and fully deserved their night of glory. Scotland — and Britain — has a team to be proud of.

Mark Hayes (14), Mill Hill, London.

I CAN understand Malcolm Macdonald's disappointment on hearing the League's decision to allow the result of the Derby-Fulham match to stand.

The rules state that 90 minutes of regulation time must be played. This was not the case. The referee called off the match because of a crowd invasion with 78 seconds still to play.

So the League committee, known for their strict allegiance to the rule book, have made a decision that flies in the face of the code of the game. Rules are made to be followed — not broken.

Evan MacDonald, Inverness, Scotland

AFTER the League's decision to let Derby's 1-0 win over Fulham stand — thereby promoting Leicester to the First Division — I was shocked to hear what Fulham boss Malcolm Macdonald said about the matter.

He said that unless Fulham were allowed to replay the game, because a minute and a half were lost from the original match because of crowd trouble, this would mean football was accepting "the rule of the mob".

Surely this is wrong. If the match was replayed, it would mean that any fans could invade the pitch if their side was losing with every hope of getting a re-match.

EVER since Peter Taylor's move to the Baseball Ground, things have been going great for Derby County.

When Taylor split up his partnership with Brian Clough, the critics doubted Peter's ability to go it alone. He has proved them wrong by engineering Derby's escape from relegation and restoring the faith of the Derby fans.

Who can forget Derby's famous FA Cup victory over Nottingham Forest last season? The atmosphere was electric.

Now that Derby have signed John Robertson from Forest, the fans will be expecting great things next season.

Liz Beeston, Nottingham.

WESLEY Mellor got it all wrong when he said in 'Terrace Talk' that Italian football lacked entertainment.

Having spent the last two years in Italy, I think Italian players are the most skilful in Europe and their League is both competitive and entertaining. Italian clubs have the highest attendances in Europe so the football can't be that bad.

The performances of Juventus in this season's European Cup and Italy in last year's World Cup Finals proved that Italian footballers are both skilful and entertaining.

Dino Scotece, Jacksdales, Nottingham.

I WAS absolutely delighted when Ray Wilkins scored a brilliant solo goal — one of the finest Cup Final goals ever — in the first meeting between Manchester United and Brighton.

It gives the United fans — who had been jeering him earlier in the season — something to think about!

Eileen Salkeld, Burnley, Lancs.

Ray Wilkins — gave United fans something to think about at Wembley.

GOLDEN GOOF

"SURELY Arsenal would have to offer more than one pound to tempt Charlie Nicholas away from Celtic," says David Hodges of Leominster, Herefordshire, who spotted this Golden Goof.

By JACK STEGGLES

CELTIC shooting star Charlie Nicholas was in London last night talking over a possible £1 move to Arsenal.

I EXPECT that the four bottom teams in the Fourth Division will be re-elected when the football charmen meet.

This old pals' act should be stopped. The top team in the Alliance Premier League should automatically step into the Football League.

And the team to drop out should be the one that seeks re-election more often than the others.

Richard Gosling, Rugby, Warwickshire.

I WAS delighted with my FA Cup Final souvenir issue of 'Match'. A great amount of work had been put into it, to provide terrific information and pictures about Brighton and Manchester United.

The pictures and stories of Aberdeen's European Cup Winners' Cup Final victory over Real Madrid were also very good.

Thanks, 'Match'.

LARIOS UP FOR GRABS

JEAN-FRANCOIS Larios, the brilliant French midfielder who has been sought by Arsenal for the last two years, could be on the move again in the summer.

Larios, who left St. Etienne for Atletico Madrid in the winter saying he would "never come back to France" is likely to move to England, Germany or Switzerland because his Spanish club cannot keep up their payments on the £500,000 deal.

The 27-year-old powerhouse and one-time friend of Michel Platini until they fell out over personal matters, is now at the centre of a tug-of-war between the most powerful men at Atletico Madrid.

Many of the club's directors think that his old knee injury cannot stand up to top football and advise letting him go even though he has not yet played in anything other than the club's nursery side, because the first team already has its two foreigners.

But club president Vicente Calderon wants to fight them all the way to keep Larios, once thought to be the new Johann Neeskens.

Jean Francois Larios — once sought by Arsenal and could be on the move now

FILLIOL SURVIVES CLEAR-OUT

VETERAN World Cup goalkeeper Ubaldo Filliol is the only survivor of the team created by Cesar Menotti in the first squad announced by new Argentine boss Carlos Bilardo.

But Bilardo admits that men such as former captain Daniel Passarella and Diego Maradona will be re-called for big games.

Two players well known to British fans have crept into favour with the new manager — Alex Sabella (once with Leeds) and former Sunderland player Claudio Marangoni.

● FORMER Birmingham star Alberto Tarantini and goalkeeper Ubaldo Filliol — both World Cup winners with Argentina — could leave their club, River Plate.

The goalkeeper is holding out for outstanding payments, while Alberto wants a signing on fee said to be in excess of £40,000.

If he doesn't get the extra money he has said he'll take his chance with a free transfer.

● HERMANN Neuburger, chairman of the World Cup organising committee, is proposing major changes for the 1986 Finals.

If accepted, the major changes would see a knockout system introduced from the quarter-final stage. The decider for third and fourth place would be dropped.

● HAMBURG have signed a £300,000 replacement for Horst Hrubesch in Dieter Schatzschneider — a 25-year-old from Hanover.

Scorer of more than 30 goals this season he is tipped for international honours.

Meanwhile West German international midfielder Hansi Muller looks set to leave Inter Milan now the club have announced their decision to try and sign the brilliant Brazilian midfielder Toninho Cerezo.

● A 1-0 away win over Portimonense won Benfica the Portuguese title for the 25th time — consolation for their defeat at the hands of Anderlecht in the UEFA Cup Final.

● MONEY flows like the oil in Kuwait.

Kadzija have signed ex-Yugoslavian national coach Miljan Miljanic... and his salary is £18,500 tax free PER MONTH!

● VOLENDAM, home club of Arnold Muhren, are chasing both Johnny Rep and Rob Rensenbrink after achieving promotion to the Dutch First Division.

Also after Rep, on a free transfer from St. Etienne, are AZ 67, FC Basle and his old club Bastia.

BRADY CHIPS IN WITH THAT...

ELITE international Liam Brady raised a few eyebrows in Italy by claiming that his Sampdoria team-mate Trevor Francis is a better player than Juventus star Paolo Rossi.

The former Arsenal playmaker who has been in good form himself, came out with that praise for the England striker, after being asked his opinions about the stars of Juventus.

Said Liam, who won two Italian League Championships with

Juventus before moving to Sampdoria: "Michel Platini is much stronger on the ball than I am, but Trevor Francis is a much better player than Paolo Rossi."

Trevor, who has finished the season in a blaze of glory after earlier injury problems, explains his final burst of goals by saying "I am now getting much more used to the type of defenders I meet regularly in Italy and I am learning the tricks of the trade."

Match brings you an informative guide to all the end of season free transfers in Division's Three and Four spotlighting the one-time Manchester United hopeful forced to pack his bags.

SLOAN LEAVES ENGLAND SAYING:

TOM Sloan watched enviously as Welsh sensation Alan Davies picked up an FA Cup winners medal and admitted: "It could have been me."

The blond midfielder turned his back on Manchester United a year ago to join Fourth Division Chester. Now he wishes he hadn't.

As Tom packs his bags and prepares to return home to Northern Ireland he is left to reflect on what might have been, if he had accepted manager Ron Atkinson's offer of another contract.

"Alan and I played together in the United reserves. We had very similar roles in midfield. As I saw him at Wembley, I couldn't help thinking that I could have been there instead of him.

"I left United because I wanted regular first team football. It didn't look as though I had a future at the club. I was fed up with the reserves.

"Now I wish I had been more patient," says 23-year-old Tom, who has been released by Chester on a free transfer.

"The ironic thing is that Alan was given a free by Dave Sexton, but Ron Atkinson decided to keep him on when he arrived at the club."

The young Welsh international was drafted into United's FA Cup Final team in place of the injured Steve Coppell and was one of the stars over two thrilling games at Wembley.

"I'm very happy for Alan because he is a very skilful player and he deserves a chance of some success."

Alan's heady rise to the top — including a full Welsh cap — is in stark contrast to his team-mate's fortunes. Tom is going part-time with Linfield and will work in his brother's plastering business.

"Things just didn't work out for me in England. I've enjoyed my spell here, but I'm happy to be going home," says Tom, who was signed by United as an 18-year-old.

Tom believes he's a victim of football's financial crisis and he predicts that players in the Fourth Division could soon be forced to go part-time.

He says: "Although I didn't have a great season at Chester, I didn't let anyone down. The club had to let me go because they couldn't afford me.

"I was the second highest paid player on the staff. They needed to cut costs so they didn't renew my contract.

"It's all about money these days. If United had told me to go I could have understood it, but it really knocks your confidence when a Fourth Division team releases you."

Tom reckons he will be better off at Linfield and he says: "At least I've got a chance of winning trophies and the club are also in Europe next season. I wouldn't have had any of that at Chester.

"One thing I am really pleased about is that I won't be under pressure any more. Football is a very insecure profession. You never know what is around the corner.

"I could have signed a year's contract with another English club and found myself in exactly the same position at the end of next season.

Mortgage

"Now I know that my job is safe and I don't have to worry about paying the mortgage," adds Tom, who is getting married in the close season.

"When I was with United I never worried about money. My experiences in the Fourth Division have taught me so much about how the other half live."

Tom is also hoping that a move to Linfield will revive his international career. He has been capped three times, but his last international appearance was against Denmark in 1979.

"There are one or two Irish League players in the international squad — Glentoran's Gerry Mullan played in the recent British Championships.

"Manager Billy Bingham regularly comes to Windsor Park to watch Linfield so I must stand a better chance than I did at Chester."

MATCH previews Wales' prestige clash with Brazil in Cardiff on Sunday . . . through the eyes of regular columnist and Scotland skipper Graeme Souness, a player who has experienced the brilliance of the Brazilians at first hand.

BRAZIL are the best team in the world and they'll be out to prove it on their European tour.

That's why I can't really give the Welshmen a hope of containing the brilliant Brazilians at Cardiff on Sunday. No British team can come close to them. Even England would get whacked if they played them.

Despite missing the marvellous midfield skills of Zico and attacking full-back Junior, they have too much all-round talent and they should quash the Welsh dragons' fire.

When they beat us 4-1 in Seville in last year's World Cup Finals I was convinced that they would go on and win the competition. It was only their arrogance and willingness to attack that let them down.

They were drawing with Italy and that result would have been enough to have taken them to the last four. But they kept streaming forward and paid the penalty by conceding a goal.

In fact that 3-2 defeat was their last, so that just goes to show how determined they are to prove themselves.

It was a great experience for me to play against them. Liverpool are regarded as the best team in the country and yet Brazil showed me just how far we've got to go to match their skills.

In the first half we matched them and even went a goal up when Dundee United's David Narey scored. But after the interval they over-ran us and were deserved winners.

The conditions told on our players in the end. Brazilians are used to hot, humid conditions and their fitness showed.

That's another reason why I think they'll do well in Wales. They are coming to Ninian Park in the summer and the pitch should be hard and the weather hot. They play in those conditions at home.

Although they have some tremendous individuals they are also great as a team. There isn't one member of the side who can't use the ball. It's as if they were born with it at their feet.

In this country defenders defend and the attacking is usually left to the midfielders and strikers. That's not the case with the Brazilians.

They use their ten outfield players to maximum effect. It's not unusual to see their centre-half in a

● BRAZIL'S first game under the charge of new manager Carlos Alberto Parreira (39) — the man who led Kuwait to last summer's World Cup Finals — ended in a 3-2 defeat for Chile. The goalscorers were Careca, Eder and Renato and the game was played in Rio de Janeiro before a crowd of 54,000.

WHEN Wales takes on Brazil their regular skipper Peter Nicholas will be thousands of miles away.

The Arsenal midfield star misses one of the most glamorous matches in his country's history, because he will be on a club tour of Indonesia.

And he admits: "I'm very disappointed. To play against Brazil is a once in a lifetime experience. They are the best team in the world."

"You hear so much about players like Socrates, Eder and Luisinho. It would have been great to see how I got on against them."

"It's a real scoop for Wales and a tremendous draw for the fans. I'm sure Brazil will want to show us what they can do. They won't have come this far to defend. Anyway that's not their style."

As well as Peter it looks likely that Wales will be missing Tottenham's Paul Price, Kenny Jackett of Watford and Swansea's Robbie James, who will all be on duty with their clubs.

Despite that, Peter still believes forward position. They all love to go forward and that makes it very difficult to mark them.

From the fans' point of view the absence of Zico and Junior is disappointing. Zico is good at everything. He can deliver the inch perfect pass and is so strong on the ball. He scored a classic goal against us.

Junior acts as an extra forward because he's so often up the field helping the attack.

But star names like Socrates, Luisinho, Eder and Isidoro will be there and they should serve up a feast of attacking football.

Skipper Socrates is a real character as well as an accomplished player. He admits to smoking 60 cigarettes a day, is a fully qualified doctor and recently became a director of his club, Corinthians.

But it's on the pitch where he's earned his reputation. He is a very elegant player and scorer of some amazing goals. I've got a very special memento of Socrates. After our game I swapped shirts with him and it's a souvenir I'll always cherish.

It's interesting to note that World Cup goalkeeper Waldir Perez isn't making the trip. I don't know whether he has been dropped but he didn't have a happy time in Spain.

But the 'keeper's position must be the last of manager Carlos Alberto Pereira's problems. They go forward that much that the number one is hardly ever in action.

Eder, another of the players who scored against us, is in the squad and I'll never forget his fantastic goal against the Russians. It was a brilliant individual effort. He was running with the ball and flicked it up before crashing a super shot past Dasaev.

I believe Wales' only chance is to stick together and try and match them for effort for the entire 90 minutes. They mustn't stand off and let them play.

It's no good Mike England's men playing as individuals, otherwise the Brazilians will just tear them apart.

The match is going to be a great experience for the young players in the Welsh team. They are sure to pick up so much by just being on the same pitch. Wales have a fantastic opportunity to learn.

I'd love to play against the Brazilians again. It would be interesting to see how we fared in conditions that suited us.

The Brazilians will treat Sunday as an exhibition match. There's no pressure on them so they'll want to show the crowd the full repertoire of their skills. It should be great for the fans!

Colourful Brazilian captain Socrates.

Peter Nicholas: "Wales stand a 50-50 chance of beating Brazil".

BRAZIL'S RECORD AGAINST OTHER HOME COUNTRY OPPOSITION (1908-1983)

ENGLAND stand alone as the only home country side to have beaten Brazil since the year 1908!

And that was way back in 1956 when England won 4-2 at Wembley.

Here are the facts:

Brazil v England
Played 12; won 7; drawn 4; lost 1.
Biggest win: 5-1 (Rio de Janeiro, 1964)

Brazil v Scotland
Played 6; won 4; drawn 2; lost 0.
Biggest win: 4-1 (Seville, 1982)

Brazil v Eire
Played 2; won 2; drawn 0; lost 0.
Biggest win: 7-0 (Uberlandia, 1982)

his country have a 50-50 chance of beating the brilliant Brazilians:

"We'll be going out there to win the game. It would be a tremendous feather in our cap if we could produce some sort of a result.

"The main advantage of playing a team like Brazil is the experience it will give our players. I'm sure they will learn a lot from the occasion."
